Capacity Building

The Nebraska Coalition prioritizes building the capacity within our member programs and communities to prevent violence, to form alliances with marginalized communities, and to provide services and safety in a meaningful manner. We build capacity to eliminate oppression of traditionally silenced groups, and strive for social change, equity, and inclusion.

Training

The Nebraska Coalition offers training opportunities for program advocates and community partners across the state. Trainings help to orient new advocates as well as to ensure that there is a common philosophy and growing knowledge across service providers. We center meeting the needs of survivors of sexual and domestic violence, human trafficking, and stalking, while also prioritizing training to embrace prevention and social change work.

Social Change

The Nebraska Coalition strives to stop violence before it occurs by investing in comprehensive, long-term primary prevention strategies that address the root causes of violence such as racism, classism, sexism, climate change, and other inequities. We work to replace the beliefs and behaviors that support violence with beliefs and behaviors that promote safety and equity for all. We believe in trauma-informed action to promote accountability. We model non-violence in our interactions with each other, within our network, in communities, and with survivors. We know that to build a world free of violence, we must first dismantle the systems that allow it to prosper. We commit to changing the many structures within our society that uphold violence through social change.

Public Policy Advocacy

The Nebraska Coalition seeks to enhance Nebraska's response to sexual and domestic violence, human trafficking, and stalking and lead efforts to reduce and ultimately prevent these violent acts from occurring. This is accomplished by advocating for survivor-centered advocacy, the elimination of oppression, and comprehensive primary prevention programs, policies, and practices that examine and support efforts to prevent violence in all levels of society.

Survivor Support and Inclusion

The Nebraska Coalition was not created for the primary purpose of providing direct services for survivors. However, when a gap in services is identified by our member programs, we have the ability to provide support for their efforts. Therefore, immigration relief services, civil-legal assistance, and prison-based advocacy for sexual assault survivors is provided to assist our member programs.
